BARGE LINE IS TO GO THROUGH HERE IN SPRING

Four Tow Boats and 10 Barges to be Sent to Pass Rock Island When Ice Breaks.

A government owned line of modern steel barges will begin operation on the upper Mississippi river from St. Louis to the river next spring.

It will consist of four powerful tow-boats and 10 barges, each of which will have a carrying capacity of 3,000 tons under the best river conditions.

At the outset, the barge line will confine its cargoes to fuel oil and coal on the up-bound trips and iron ore and pig iron on the southbound trips.

Until the movement of the barge line between St. Louis and the twin-cities is established, no stops will be made at intermediate points to take on or discharge freight. All of the tows, however, will stop at Keokuk and at Rock Island preparatory to going through the locks at these two points.

These statements were made before the newly organized Upper Mississippi Waterways association, in convention Wednesday at Minneapolis, by Colonel Edward F. Goitra of St. Louis, president of the Mississippi river company, who has leased the barge equipment from the government and will operate the barge line.

Definite News.

Colonel Goitra told the convention that all but two of the barges have been completed and that the barge line could have been put in operation this fall. It was deemed advisable, however, to wait until spring, in view of the fact that within a few weeks navigation on the river will be stopped by the formation of ice.

Until adequate facilities are provided in the twin-cities for unloading coal in great quantities, the barge line probably will carry fuel oil on its up-bound trips, as facilities for unloading this commodity can be installed in a very short time. Until proper terminal facilities can be provided in the twin-cities, the iron ore and pig iron will be loaded into the barge by means of chutes extending from one of the bridges.

Colonel Goitra stated that as soon as conditions justified such service, the barge line facilities

RECEIVE BIDS TO RIVERS AND HARBORS MEET

Rock Island Organizations Get Invitations to Congress in Washington, Dec. 8-10.

The official call for the 16th convention of the National Rivers and Harbors congress in Washington Dec. 8-10, has been received by Rock Island organizations which in previous years have been active in work of the congress.

It is doubtful that this city will be officially represented at the sessions, although messages of cooperation in any plan it adopts will be sent by local river boosters.

John H. Small, president, and S. A. Thompson, secretary, unite in the call which points out that "fundamental need of the country is a great increase in transportation facilities. Our transportation system," the notice says, "can never equal the traffic needs until our waterways are developed and brought into coordination with the railways and the highways. How to secure this result at the earliest possible time is one of the most important things to be considered by the convention."

The announcement naively warns delegates that the railroads are not granting special rates. "A government that can order its people to pay an additional $133,000,000 a month to the railroads could well afford to invest $100,000,000 a year in the improvement of its waterways," is the battle cry of the present convention and some suggestions advanced for tackling the problem include creation of a new department of public works or appointment of waterways commission. Some advocates of these two plans want to take away from congress the power to decide what should be done and from the army engineers the execution of the works that are ordered.

DETROIT VISITOR IS PLEASED WITH SAXAPHONE BAND

L. J. Lewis, a visitor from Detroit, Mich., was surprised when after hearing the rehearsal concert of the Elks' saxophone band at the club rooms last evening, he was told that the band had been organized only three months. "Why, from the way they played," said Lewis, "I took it for granted that they had been playing together for a long time, at least a year or so."

The concert was informally rendered to members, and was but one of the twice a week rehearsals which the sax men are holding under the training of Carl Shimmatt, director.

The next concert will be given Dec. 20, when the band will play at a ceremonial at which 100 candidates will be initiated. Shimmatt is organizing a saxophone quartet and a sextet, to be the features at the Elks' minstrel to be staged in January.
